What Size Do I Need?

Whether you are new to poultry farming or you have years of experience, we are committed to helping you choose the best possible option.

In the graph below, you can determine which coop size best fits your specific needs.

Coop Size	Turkeys	Ducks	Layers	Broilers
5 x 6	4-8	6-10	10-12	10-20
6 x 10	8-15	12-20	24-30	30-40
10 x 12	12-30	24-40	40-60	60-80
12 x 12	24-36	60-80		75-100
12 x 24	50-75	120-160		175-200

Additional Tips

Turkeys: Use the second number in the graph if you are using hybrid genetics/16 week harvest dates. For heritage breeds, use the first number/24 week harvest dates.

Ducks: Use the second number in the graph if you are using Pekin meat genetics and the first number if using Muscovy meat ducks or duck egg Layers.

Layers: Use the second number in the graph if you are using hybrid Layers, and the first number if using heritage breed Layers.

Broilers: Use the second number in the graph for Cornish-Cross genetics/6-8 week harvest dates, 4-6 lbs carcass weights. Use the first number if using a slower growing strain such as Freedom Ranger or a heritage breed/9 week harvest dates.

Alumi-Coop 4-Seasons Enclosure Kits

30-gauge clear Crystal-Clear vinyl panels. Very simple installation/zip ties to frame. Fits 5x6 - 6x10 - 10x12.

Wintertime Layer Setup

Step #1 - Prepare a 4-6 inch wood chip bed on the south side of a building. Make it 2 feet wider and longer than your Alumi-Coop.

Step #2 - Install 4-Seasons Kit with included zipties.

Step #3 - Pull Alumi-Coop on top of wood chip bedding facing south. Add shavings as needed to keep bedding pack dry.

Note: Be sure to move Superior Poultry feeder & waterer inside of Alumi-Coop for winter. This will keep water from freezing as long as daytime temps rise above 32°. If the sun is shining, waterer will be ok until about 20° daytime temps. We are working on an insulated, frost-free, Superior Waterer and it will hopefully be available by fall of 2022!
